PREFACE.

This compilation originated in a desire to place in some tangible form the names of the early settlers and their successors who were honored by being elected to fill the civil and military offices of the colony, the compiler being well convinced that it could not fail to be of considerable interest to the families of the present generation to learn that their ancestors were of such sterling quality as to have been selected for such positions of trust and responsibility as would seem to have been required in the earlier period of our history. And I have also presumed, with still more confidence, that the records of the officers of the Colonial and Revolutionary wars would be received with possibly even greater interest by their descendants, who ought to entertain the most impressive sense of gratitude for the patriotic ardor of their ancestors.

From the earliest period a militia force was ordered for defence of the colony, and all the officers, as found in the records, are herewith given, whose training and drill kept alive and perfected the martial spirit which proved so capable in the trying emergencies that arose during the Colonial and Revolutionary wars and more recent controversies.

The commanding officers of the colony, and of the regiments of the Island and the Main Land, were given as early as 1675, but until May, 1714, scarcely any mention of the different company officers of militia appears upon the records.

The duties of justice of the peace, or magistrate, were executed by members of the General Assembly or Court (elected by the freemen) in the towns from which they were elected before May, 1700. Afterwards these offices were delegated to conservators, or justices of the peace, selected and commissioned by the General Assembly.

The duties of the higher offices of justice were also executed by the Governor and members of the General Assembly (elected by the free-men) as a General Court, until the special appointments of a County Court, an Inferior Court of Common Pleas and General Sessions of the Peace, May, 1728; a Court of Equity, May, 1742; and a Superior Court of Judicature, Court of Assize, and General Gaol Delivery, May, 1748; and a Supreme Judicial Court, June, 1799. Various laws were passed from the beginning of legislative government relating to the civil and military offices, till these affairs were well established, about 1700, a few of which it may seem proper to note:

“1647. May. That Six Men in each Towne shall be chosen, in Whom the General Court shall continue, and that each Towne Shall have the choice of their men if they please, or if any Towne refuse, the Court shall choose for them.

It is enacted by this present assembly, that for matters of greater Weight and moment, there shall be erected a General Court of Tryalls for the whole Colonie, and General officers for the Administration of Justice. The President shall sitt as Chief Judge, with the assistants. That the President and assistants shall have such a Commission by which they shall be Conservators of the Peace in the same Towne where they live, and throu out the whole Colonie.

That there is free liberty granted to the Free Inhabitants of the Province (if they will) to erect an Artillery Garden, and those that are desirous to advance the art Military, shall have freedom to exercise them selves therein, and to agree to their form, and Choose their officers, and they shall agree among them selves. That all ye Inhabitants in each Towne shall choose their Military officers from among themselves on the first Tuesday after the 12th of March. And that eight several times in the yeare the Bands of each Plantation or Towne shall openlie in the field, be exercised and disciplined by their Commanders and officers, the months of May, August, January, and February, excepted, and on the 1st Monday of ye other Months to make their personal appearance armed, to attend their colors by 8 o'clock in the Morning at the Second beat of the Drum.”

“1649. That should one chosen Captain of the Train Band refuse the place, and accepting the place, neglect to train the Band upon the Days appointed, he shall forfeit five pounds, and the Lieftenant, in like manner, fifty shillings.

That if a President elected shall refuse to serve in that General Office, that then he shall pay a fine of ten pounds, and the General Assistant that refuseth to serve after being choosen, shall pay a fine of five pounds.

That he that hath most voates next to him that refuseth, shall supply the place of him that refuseth.

That the Town Magistrates of the Town wheare the General Court of Tryalls shall be, shall sit in Court with the General Officers, and have equall authority to voate and Act with the General Officers."

"1651. That the lawe making Assemblie of this Collonie shall Consist of six men of every Towne of this Collonie, and that these six men of every Town shall be chosen by the free inhabitants of every severall Towne, and the major vote of this assembly shall Acte in making lawes."

"1664. That Two Courts of Trialls in the year be held upon the Mayne at Providence and Warwicke to the value of and under Ten Pounds, and not to sitt without Three Assistants each, and that at Providence Court, there shall be at least one assistant from Warwicke, and that at Warwicke Court, at least one assistant from Providence. Furthermore, when the Court is held at Providence, the Assistant first elected of that Towne, shall sitt as Judge of that Court, and at Warwicke, the assistant first elected, shall sitt as Judge of that Court.

At Providence 2nd Tuesday in September, annual.

" Warwicke " March, annually.

"1703. That Two Inferior Courts of Common Pleas shall be appointed each year at Newport, for Rhode Island County.

That there shall be Two Inferior Courts of Common Pleas on the Main Land (Providence Plantation) at:

Providence and Warwick 1st year.

Kingstown and Westerly 2nd year.

That the Clarke of the Train Band shall return the names of the Military officers within two days after their election, unto the Governor, or chiefest Magistrate in each Towne, to be by him returned to the General Recorder to be recorded."

1686. Sir Edmund Andros assumed authority over the Colony by appointment from Great Britain, and there were no sessions of the General Assembly, but affairs of State were conducted by officers of his selection till 1691, as herewith given:

Prior to the organizing of legislative government, the towns of Providence, Portsmouth, and Newport each maintained a local government, selecting their own officers, both civil and military, entirely separate and independent of each other, though afterwards embraced in the same colony.

Warwick never exercised any power of government nor proceeded to elect any officers until the organization of Government in 1647, but by charter from Earl of Warwick, dated March, 1643, which went into effect May, 1647, these three towns were granted all the privileges of self-government, under the name of The Incorporation of Providence Plantations in Narragansett Bay in New England.

Warwick's first action as a town was in August, 1647.

Westerly: May, 1669.

New Shoreham: 1672.

Kings Towne: 1674.

East Greenwich: 1677.

James Towne: 1678.

In presenting this compilation to the General Assembly, to whom I am indebted for its publication, I cannot refrain from acknowledging gratitude for their appreciation of the undertaking, with a sincere trust that the result may not appear unworthy of their interest. To the Honorable Secretary of State, Charles P. Bennett, are due the hearty thanks of the compiler for his earnest coöperation.
